PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS.

An Interesting Discussion in the Sen ate on the Application of Its Rule to the Pension Appropriations.

The House Talks About Severa Things, but Principally the Postoffice Appropriation.

FOR TY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

The Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10,-Mr. Allison prasided over the Senate to-day. The chair laid before the Senate a memorial, in the form of a joint resolution, from the Legislature of Dakota, urging a division of the territory and admission of its southern portion as a State.

The Senate passed Sherman's joint resolution providing for the striking of medals to commemorate the dedication of Washington's monument.

Mr. Voorhees called up his bill to increase the appropriation for the public building at Fort Wayne from $100,000 to $175,000, and making $50,000 the amount immediately available. Passed.

The consideration of the bill to prevent unlawful occupancy of public lands was resumed. This is the bill known as the "antifencing bill." It passed with slight amend-

The Senate resolved to stand by its action of yesterday in regard to "riders" on genaral appropriation bills. Mr. Ingalle: Now, Mr. President, there appears to be some discrimination exercised by the Committee on Appropriations in their report upon the bill. Some of the general egislation that came to us from the House has been stricken out, and other features of that legislation they have allowed to stand. I am unable to see why, if the rule is to be applied, why it should not be applied uniformly. Mr. Ingalls here pointed out some features of the House bill which the Sanate Con mittee had allowed to remain unchanged, and asked the Senator from Iowa (Allison) whether they were not general legslation. One clause pointed out by Mr. Ingalls was admitted by Allison to be of that character, but he (Allison) for one had not been willing to recommend that it be stricken out. It was the clause providing that the presumption of soundness at the time of en-listment should operate now in the case of applicants for pensions.

Mr. Ingalls supposed the reason why Mr. Allison wished it retained was that it was valuable and necessary legislation.

Mr. Allison said: Not that alone, but the Senate had already twice passed on the pro-vision. Any Senator, however, could move to strike it out. Mr. Allison did not regard the clause as a change in the existing law.

Mr. Ingalls said it was a change in the existing law, but not a change in the existing practice of the Pension Office. Of course, after the Government had examined a man, and declared him sound and accepted his service, it would seem unjust it should claim he was not sound at his enlistment. It would seem the Government ought to be estopped from such claim. Mr. Ingalls had been informed at the Pension Office that the law was practically interpreted that way, but that discretion should be permitted to the Pension Commissioner to cover special and exceptional cases. It seemed to Mr. Ingalls, however, that the clause in question was general legislation

Mr. Jackson moved to add to the bill a provision of the bill recently passed by the Senata relating to the compensation, etc., of Pension Attorneys, in the amendment.

Mr. Ingalls moved to strike out as general legislation the clause requiring that the presumption of soundness shall operate, but that such presumption may be rebutted.

Mr. Sherman hoped it would not be stricken out. It would be physically impossible, he said, for many deserving soldiers to prove that, after twenty years had elapsed, they were sound when they enlisted. We should not carry on this farce about the operation of the Senate rule any farther; we should not deny soldiers their rights merely on the ground that an "I" was not dotted or "T" crossed.

out of the provision. A meaner or more contemptible spectacle, he said, had never been presented by the United States government when it said to a soldier after its own examination and acceptance of him, and after he had served and suffered exposure, resulting in the long continued and wasting diseases, or had been maimed and crippled in the service of his country, that he must now affirmatively prove his soundness at the time of his enlistment. A shocking instance, Voorhees said, had lately come under his observation. During the late canvass, a little man had come to him with his papers from the pension office showing his pension application had been rejected because he was not sound at the time of his enlistment He had served three years and a half in the army. Observing on the lapel of his coat something looking take a silver dollar, Voorhees was surprised that so poor looking a man should use silver dollars for ornaject to be a silver medal. The medal read: Presented by the United States of America matism contracted from lying on the ground, hore a medal dearer to him than ever had soldier of Napoleon. That man, when engaged in a difficult and dangerous task, ex posed to a heavy fire, when ordered by his commanding officer to retire or he would be killed, had replied, "What are we here for if not to succeed or take our chances of death?" Yet that soldier had in his pocket a letter from the Pension Office notifying him that he was not sound at the time of his enlistment and that he could have no pension.

After some further discussion Mr. Ingalls' amendment was voted down by yeas 16 nays 44, Mr. Ingalls himself voting in the nega tive. The bill then passed substantially as it came from the Senate Committee, all the legislation found on the bill as it came from the House, relating to the compensation of pension attorneys, etc., being struck out, the Senate having already passed a by the Constable.

The Wheat Orop-Obituary. Special to the Sentinel.

SEYMOUR, Feb. 10 .- Farmers in this county are greatly discouraged over the wheat prospect. The sowing was late last fall, and the severe and changeable weather has done great injury to the tardy young growth.

Mrs. Sarah Stryker Brown, one of the p'oneers of Jackson County, and a resident since 1820, died at her home in Brownstown yesterday morning, of malignant cancer, aged nearly eighty three years. She was an earnest Christian woman, revered by all who

Mrs. Brown's maiden hame was Sarah Stryker, and she was born in Steuben County, New York, June 5, 1802, and came to this county with her parents who settled at Rockford in the year 1820. On the 22d of November, 1822, she married Jesse Brown, and they took up their residence at Browns. town in the same year, where she has since resided. The fruit of their union was nine children-five sons and four daughters-of whom only three-Daniel Helper Brown, of this city; Peter S. Brown, of Louisville, and Mrs. A. M. Woods, of Brownstown, survive her. At a very early age the deceased united with the M. E. Church, of which she was, during hor entire life, an earnest and devoted member. The closing years of her life were painful and sorrowful ones, owing to the insidious and malignant nature of her disease, but all her sufferings were borne with true Christian meekness and resignation. Her long and useful life is ended, and another pioneer of Jackson County has gone over to the silent majority. Her husband died in September, 1874, since which time she has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Woods, and her closing days were made as comfortable as possible by the tender and affectionate care of her children, who, in their deep bereavement, have the sympathy of the community.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Representative Stockslager Makes a Report on the Subject.

Washington, Feb. 10. - Representative Stockslager has made a report on the bill defining the duties of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury and for other purposes. which contains a great deal of valuable information on the subject of Government buildings located throughout the country. It shows that there has been appropriated for public buildings in Indiana $354 900, as follows: For the building and site for a Custom House at Evansville, in 1873 80, $336,132; Marine Hospital, $57,899. For si e and public building at Fort Wayne, now under the course of construction, $90,000, For site and building at Indianapolis, to be used for a Court House and Postoffice, appropriated 1850 81. $387 400. Postoffice, etc., at Terre Haute (1882). $75,000, the total cost to be limited to $150,000.

There are bills before the House providing additional amounts for Fort Wayne and Terre Haute; also making original appropristions for New Albany, Lafayette and Madison. It is probable the bill for New Albany will be passed, if not at this session, at the next. Mr. Stockslager is doing heroic service in the matter, and deserves the praise of his constituents, He will embrace the first opportunity to call the bill up and urge its passage. The refusal to consider it in the House the other day was no fault of his. He managed the mat ter with skill and showed unusual ability and indefatigable energy, but the members were in no humor for its consideration. He said to the Sentinel correspondent to day that he would probably get consideration of the bill during the last six days of the session, when it will be in order to move the suspension of the rules for its passage. Under the skillful management of Senator Voorhees the bill passed the Senate some

Danville Postoffice. [Communicated.)

DANVILLE, Ind., Feb. 10.-The many friends of Mr. A. P. Pounds sincerely appreciate all the glowing words of commendstion uttered in favor of his political preferment, but we simply voice the sentiment of a large majority of the Democratic party in saying that a promotion in excess of the desires of Mr. Pounds would be regarded by bim as a defeat. His friends do not demand for him a reward for the many personal and pecuniary sacrifices on his part, but they do most emphatically at d with proper deference to every person. demand that he should be recognized in the only request he has ever made of our party, ard that is, that he shall be Postmaster at this place. He has never aspired to the Collectorship, and will not accept it. If he is worthy (and his competitors acknowledge that he is), and if his past emipent services entitle blm to recognition at the hands of his party, as all acknowledge they do, why not accord to him the first and only petty recognition he ever asked? While we acknowledge that Mr. Pounds is worthy of every word of I ndation which the recent article in the Sentinel accorded him, we are aware of the sini ter motives which prompted the idea of the writer that the Postoffice hip was beneath his desires and aspirations. Actuated by the ublime maxim "Tell the Truth," we after being fully at d sufficiently advised, most emphatically say that Mr. Pounds aspires to and desires the appointment to the Postmastership and nothing more. If this is not completed the allowance of claims of In- gratiude and justice! We ask, and we have a right to insist, that A. P. Pounds, who is named by his competitors the "noblest Roman of them all," shall have the appointment of Postmaster. We ask that justice may be done, but hereafter, as heretofore, we will oppose our patience and kindly regard to the most mercenary and malicious JUSTICE.
